

To change cache settings:

- Select Tools > Internet Options then under Browsing History select Settings.
You can then make advanced configuration changes to the cache (only do this if you are reasonably confident of what you are doing).
- There is an option labelled Check for a new version of stored pages select Every visit to the page. This does not bypass the cache, it merely determines how often the browser asks if there is a newer version available.

Top

Mozilla Firefox

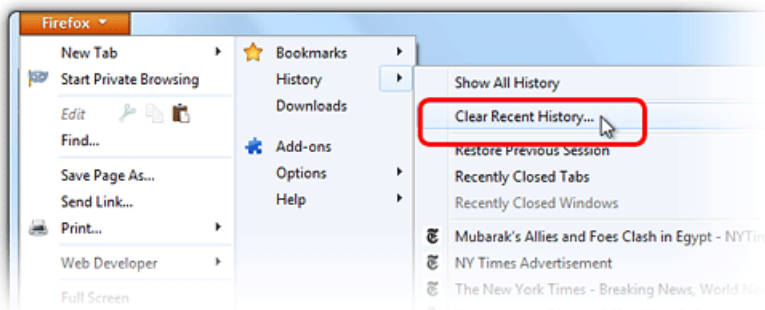

To reload a page and bypass the cache:

Either:

1. Hold the Control key and press F5 or
2. Hold the Control key and select the Refresh button on the toolbar.

To completely clear the cache:

- At the top of the Firefox window select the Firefox button, go over to the History menu and select Clear Recent History...
For Windows XP: At the top of the Firefox window, click the Tools menu and select Clear Recent History...
- Select Everything from the drop down menu and tick the boxes next to:
 - Cache and
 - Cookies.
- Press Clear Now

To change cache settings:

- At the top of the Firefox window select the Firefox button go over to the Options menu. Then select Options from the sub menu and select the Advanced tab.
For Windows XP: Choose the Tools menu and select Options...

This allows you to make advanced configuration changes to the cache (only do this if you are reasonably confident of what you are doing).

Top

Google Chrome

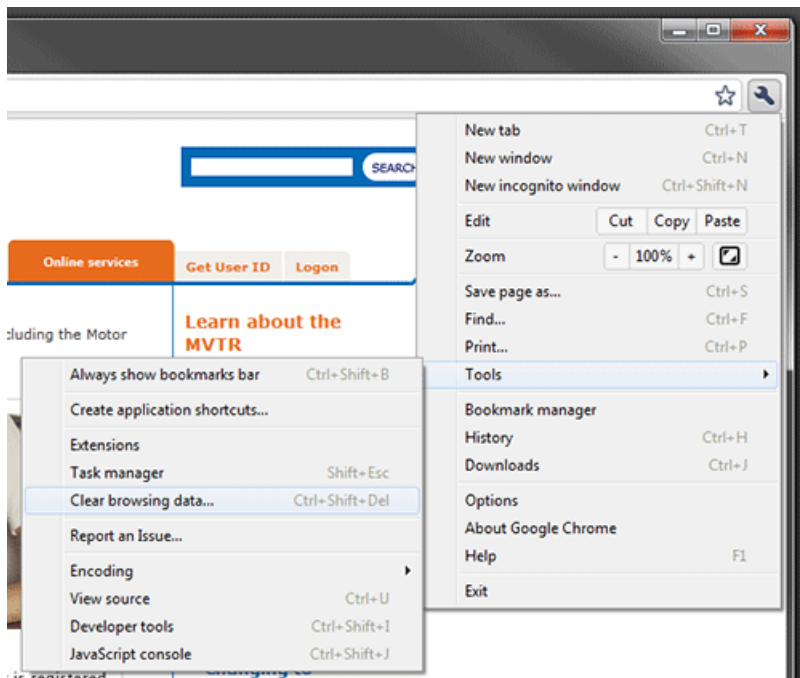

To reload a page and bypass the cache:

Either:

1. Hold the Control key and press F5, or
2. Hold the Control key and select the Refresh button on the toolbar.

To completely clear the cache:

- Select the Settings option located in the top right hand corner of your browser window.
- Select the Tools option and select Clear browsing data.
- Tick the boxes next to
 - Empty the cache and
 - Delete cookies and other site data.
- Select Everything from the dropdown menu next to Clear data from this period
- Select Clear browsing data.

To change cache settings:

Select the Settings option located in the top right hand corner of your browser window. From the menu select Options then the Under the Hood tab and Content settings... This allows you to make advanced configuration changes to the cache (only do this if you are reasonably confident of what you are doing).